Season: Easter Series: The Good Life
Sermon: Work and the Good Life

What is your work?

Common views of work:

- .

An invitation to a better way:

"Once you stop to think about it, you can see that not to find your job to be a primary place of discipleship is to automatically exclude a major part, if not most, of your waking hours from life with him. It is to assume to run one of the largest areas of your interest and concern on your own or under the direction and instruction of people other than Jesus. But this is right where most professing Christians are left today..." Dallas Willard, Divine Conspiracy p. 285

Less about the work, more about the worker.

"And whatever you do, whether in word or deed, do it all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him." - Paul, Colossians 3:17

Questions for further discussion:

- How would you characterize the relationship between your work and the good life?
- Which aspects of the three common views of work do you resonate with? In what ways do you see these views as good?
- Share your response to the invitation to see your work as the "context of your becoming."
- Reread and discuss Colossians 3:17.
- How have we so often - and almost completely - drawn a line around "work" and considered discipleship to Jesus as something we do elsewhere?
